Research Now plc

AGM Statement

Geoff Westmore, Chairman of Research Now plc (AIM: RNOW), the leading international online fieldwork provider to the market research industry, will today make the following statement at the Group's Annual General Meeting:

"Although it is still early days, we have had a positive start to the financial year with all our markets performing strongly.

When economic conditions get tougher, companies have an even greater incentive to seek out lower cost and more effective means by which they conduct their business. Online market research data collection offers just such an advantage – faster, cheaper and better than traditional, face to face and telephone market research methods.

I remain confident that Research Now is well positioned to deliver profitable growth in the year ahead."
